Name	Navneet Singh
Affiliations	Trillium Health Partners, University of Toronto
Biographical details	Navneet Singh is on full-time staff at Trillium Health Partners. He holds appointments as an Associate Scientist at the Sunnybrook Research Institute and Assistant Professor of Medical Imaging at the University of Toronto. His multispecialty interests and experiences include cardiothoracic, acute care, and neurovascular imaging. During his Clinician Investigator Program Diagnostic Radiology residency at the University of Toronto, Navneet obtained a MPH from Harvard University and a PhD from the University of Toronto, and carried out peer-review funded patient-oriented imaging and atherosclerosis trials. He also completed a fellowship in cardiothoracic imaging at UHN and is a former full-time radiologist at Sunnybrook. Navneet's research focuses on the quantification of medical imaging biomarkers paired with artificial intelligence and radiomics signatures for the identification and prediction of disease. Active projects include deep learning quantification of coronary inflammation from cardiac CT for the early detection and prevention of cardiovascular disease. He has a particular interest in promoting equity, diversity, and inclusion of marginalized, minority and other underrepresented patients in research.
